

Don't neglect your cough.

Statistics show that in New York City alone over 200 people die every week from consumption.

And most of these consumptives might be living now if they had not neglected the warning cough.

To a Little Girl of Yesterday.

Little girl of yesterday,
You have left us, so they say;
All your childish ways are gone,
Cometh now the sad, sweet dawn
Of womanhood, and mystery,
Of the life that is to be.
Was it not just yesterday
That you put your dolls away?
Just a little while ago
When you romped and chattered so—
Chattered early, chattered late,
Now you're silent and sedate.
Little sweetheart, yesterday,
You departed, so they say;
But, perhaps, it is not true,
Everything they say of you.
I wish that you might stay
As you were just yesterday,
Dancing down the paths of May
In your wilful, witching way—
Then you might not deem it bold
Just to love me as old.

—Robert V. Carr.

Yokohama Letter.

Yokohama, Japan, August 4.—A quick and pleasant trip from Honolulu has brought me to the threshold of the Flowery Kingdom. I am still at the threshold for I write this letter on board the steamer as we wait in Tokyo bay, where we are anchored two miles from land. One of the typhoons, those terrible revolving windstorms for which this coast is famous, has been blowing, and we have been waiting for the heavy swell to subside so we can land. There are no wharves at Yokohama, and we have to go ashore in small boats. A swarm of sampans, clumsy native boats, is around the ship and the men in them are clamoring lustily for passengers. But the captain says to wait, and we do not care to risk our lives to get on land.

I was going to tell how these Japanese boatmen are dressed, but the better word to use is "undressed." They wear a wide-sleeved, scanty garment which reaches to the knees, and in addition to this some of them have a cloth bound around their heads. The boys are not so well dressed for all they have on is the mao or loin cloth, which the law compels them to wear. Most of them are hideously tattooed. They keep up a continuous chatter, interspersed with shouts of "hai," "hai," which is a warning for the other boatmen to get out of the way. These sampans are so tightly packed about the ship that one could walk over them as upon a surfing floor.

Our trip from Honolulu was broken by a stop at Midway island, a most desolate spot in a desolate ocean, where cable operators and thousands of sea birds are the only inhabitants. The monotony of the lives of those men must be terrible, and were it not for their communion with the world over their cables they surely would go insane. The poor fellows are glad to talk to the passengers of the ship, and said they got so lonesome at times that it was only by greatest effort of mind they stood the awful isolation. Two of the operators who were on the island went insane, and now they are charged every three months so they can stand the strain.

At Guam, where we also stopped, conditions are somewhat better, for in addition to the Americans there are natives, and the island is covered with trees. The natives of Guam are similar to those of the Philip-pines, and they have learned the value of international commerce, for they brought many curios to the vessel to sell to the passengers. They have learned that people on ships are easy victims and they demand extraordinary prices for their wares. I am told that when whiffs first came to the island they could buy beautiful tapes, shields and clubs for whatever they choose to give, but now you have to pay more than is asked in San Francisco for the same articles. It does not take long for the savage to learn that the tourist and his money are easily parted.

I have been much impressed by this trip across the Pacific. In all the days at sea since we left San Francisco we have not seen a single vessel of any description until we entered the harbors of Honolulu and Yokohama. I wondered what would happen if an accident should compel us to take to the small boats while away out in the ocean. Our chance of rescue would have been small, indeed. Fortunately the weather was beautiful until we ran into the outer edge of the typhoon on the coast of Japan. I am glad it was not the inner circle for the edge was bad enough to send half of the passengers to their beds with sea sickness. These typhoons are disastrous to shipping and many wrecks can now be seen as a result of the storm which is holding us off shore. It is warm and sultry, and light garments have replaced the heavy ones we had worn since leaving Guam.

One satisfaction we derive from our present position is that we vary the monotony of our sea food, for now we have all kinds of fresh vegetables, fruits and fish. Fish are especially abundant for nearly every one of these boatmen is a fisherman as well, and all have fish to sell in addition to their offering their boats to carry passengers ashore. Several steam launches are plying between ship and shore, and when I go it will be in something better than a clumsy sampan. C. E. E.

Bought A Bank.

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 7.—To pay a debt of gratitude and protest interests of a bank which was involved in the suspension of the National Bank of Commerce in this city Jos. Brown, of Argentine, Kas., who a few years ago accumulated large fortune mining in the Klondyke, today purchased outright the First State Bank of Argentine, which closed its doors last Thursday for one day only. The bank was a branch of the National Bank of Commerce. Brown paid cash for all of the banks indebtedness and buying its securities. The amount paid was $40,000.

MUNICIPAL UNACY.

By JOHN KENDRICK BANGS.

Over in Boston a little while ago they put a successful undertaker in charge of the supplies department, with the result that the Hub has been buying inferior grade coal at high grade prices, and the honorable superintendent didn't know it until the facts were brought out by an investigating committee. We are not at all surprised and for two reasons—first, a man may be a first rate undertaker and know the quality of what he puts into the ground without necessarily being an expert on what comes out of the ground, and, second, Boston should have known what we all know—that an undertaker is not the right kind of a man to have charge of a civic coal plant. Under the most approved municipal ownership ventures it is the custom to have such things attended to by milliners and delicatessen men.

Matthew Arnold ought to be a popular author with those municipal ownership advocates who believe that a gas works can be successfully managed by a confectioner. He wrote an essay once on sweetness and light, which would seem to show that the two things are not incompatible.

Paris, France—to distinguish it from Paris, Ky.—has gone into the undertaking business and is said to give great satisfaction to both mourners and to the deceased. Just how this would work in this country we cannot say. Philadelphia would doubtless make a first class undertaker, as would also Boston, but we fear New York, Chicago and St. Louis would prove too frivolous for the job.

New York's combined garbage incinerator and electric light plant which was used to provide light for the Williamsburg bridge has faded away like the last rose of summer. Even under the city's liberal system of free garbage for all so pleasantly insisted upon during the warm days of last July, by which fuel cost the lighting plant nothing, the loss was $25,000 a year as compared to the cost of a similar service under private contract. And there wasn't anything the matter with the garbage either.

Over in France, where they have government ownership of the telephone, the "subscriber" has to yell himself so hoarse to get central that when the desired connection is finally made he is too hoarse to make himself heard. This of course has its advantages if it be true that men are prone to talk too much and as a restraint upon a too impulsive speech, but we cannot help wondering how long an American telephone company unsupported by the army and navy, the president, the supreme court and both houses of congress would last under similar conditions.

The privately owned department stores of Berlin are underselling the municipal market halls so decidedly that the latter are being operated at a loss. We wonder that his honor William H. Kaiser of Potsdam permits such cold blooded butchery.

It Sounds Logical.

It was after changing a meter, an old one, for one of more recent manufacture that one of the inspectors was called to the house of a German. The complainant wanted that meter changed again at once. "For what did you change my meter except to make me pay more gas bill?" he asked. His bill had increased. The inspector tried to explain that the winter months and the earlier darkness were responsible, but he couldn't fool the old German. "You take out my little meter and put in that big box," he remarked sagely. "Big box, lots of gas; little box, little gas." And all the explaining in the world could not move him.—Progressive Age.

This Plant Was Given Away.

The mayor of Fulda, Minn., writes with regard to the electric light plant in that city:
"Our plant was not sold, but given away in 1902 but the deed was not executed until five years later, as according to contract the present owner was to run it for five years in payment for it. The reason for giving it away was that it ran $1,000 behind every year. The original cost was about $5,000.
The original cost must have been increased by later additions, as in January last the superintendent reported the cost as $10,000."

Petty Despotism.

The Hackensack (N. J.) letter carriers have been ordered by the postmaster general to resign their membership in the various fire companies. They are looked upon by the federal authorities as paid, because they are allowed $12 a year for damage to their clothing in service. It is this that the postal authorities declare to be "pay." The firemen letter carriers say they never have left their routes to attend a fire, and they can't imagine how the postoffice authorities became so interested in so small a matter.—Fire and Water Engineering.

One Method of Control.

On the board of directors of the Louisville (Ky.) Gas company are four men representing the city's interests. They must be residents of Louisville, must own not less than ten and not over a hundred shares of the company's stock and be elected by the boards of aldermen, the gas company furnishing a list of eligibles.—Progressive Age.

Sentence Sermon.

The thoughtful always are thankful.

Whatever lifts up the heart enlarges the life.

The income of the heart depends on its outgo.

You can never reach a dignity by leaping over a duty.

The Lord never forgets the man who forgets himself.

No man lives who does not get some new life every day.

No man ever prayed who did all his praying on his knees.

There is one through road to heaven; it is by the doors of needy humanity.

A feeling heart enriches the world much more than the full hand without it.

The man who loves himself exclusively always has room to give sin a lodging.

Refuses to Sanction Expense to Show.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 26.—In a communication from Gov.-elect Augustus E. Wilson to Brig. Gen. Roger Williams in regard to the attendance of the state troops at the inauguration, December 10, Mr. Wilson says:

"I wish the appropriation for the state guards to be faithfully kept and used exclusively for the honor of the state and the usefulness of the troops and never in any way for me personally. I am informed that the military fund is exhausted, and the expense of the troops attending the inauguration would fall upon a future appropriation over which I have no official control. I am resolutely and unalterably opposed to in any way anticipating any part of it unless absolutely necessary for the welfare of the state and in my inauguration I wish to avoid all display of expense."

Jones Sticks To His Name For Station.

Uniontown, Ky., Dec. 5.—William Jones, of Jones' Station, has torn down the famous old sign at Highland. "This is not Highland here; this is Jones," and has erected two neat signs on either side of the Illinois Central railroad, painted in neat letters of the same style as the usual railroad signs, "Jones' Station."

Highland is between Corydon and Morgantfield. The trouble between Jones and the railroad began several years ago, when the railroad planted in front of Jones' house, that fronts the railroad, the sign "Highland."

"This has been Jones," he said, "for sixty years. My father settled here when a boy."
He hired a painter and made the first sign, being determined to outwit the railroad company, just within a few feet of the sign "Highland" sign. "This is not Highland here; this is Joneses," the Joneses being intended for Jones. The railroad sent down men to have the sign demolished, but as it was planted on Jones land, they thought it best to let it alone.

Heart Strength

Heart strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness, means Nerve Power, or Nerve Lack of Power. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without this the heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, peevish, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this potent prescription—is alone directed to these weak and ailing nerve centers. It builds! It strengthens. It offers real, genuine heart help. If you would have strong hearts, strong digestion, strength, these nerves—renewal build them as needed, with
